

SOUTH COAST

The main tourist towns in south Sri Lanka are Galle, Unawatuna, Weligama, Mirissa, Tangalle and Hikkaduwa. But the beauty of the coast is that there are a plethora of smaller towns and quiet bays for you to stay in, away from the rest of the tourist crowds.

After spending a bit of time in this chaotic rush of a city, you should consider heading towards Galle or any of the other south coast cities for a more relaxing experience. From Galle, an hour's drive further south will take travellers to one of the south coast's most scenic beach destination Mirissa. Another 1.5 hour drive to Tangalle. The palm fringed beaches and colonial beach towns make the Southern Coast of Sri Lanka a popular destination for visitors to this country. For backpackers Southern Coast makes no difference. It is easy to travel around and accommodation wise there is something for everyone's budget. You can make your traveling on the Southern coast of Sri Lanka as cheap or expensive as you like.
